

Rowdy Randy's Risky Adventures

Lightning Fast

When Rowdy Randy got Rowdy his head got red hot and cloudy. Randy had a pal named Sandy who never gave Randy sugared candy. Sandy had a buddy named Mandy who made Randy feel fine and dandy. Miss Mandy had tiny, fast feet and a running record no boy had ever beat.

One day, Randy said, "I bet two pieces of candy I can run faster than little Miss Mandy." Sandy grinned and said to Randy, "Ok, Cowboy, I'll bet you four pieces of candy!"

After class, Sandy ran to Mandy and said, "Randy just bet me two pieces of candy, that he could out run you, Little Miss Mandy."

Mandy grinned as she got a blue marker and marked the line. "Go ahead, Sandy, you bet four pieces of candy, I can out run any size, shape or kind."

Randy had been running for a long time and thought, "I'm as fast as a rabbit and I've never been caught. Today, I'm going to teach her a lesson she's never been taught."

“How far is the race”, asked Little Miss Mandy.
“Fifty yards” said Sandy, sharply.

Randy and Mandy walked to the starting line, where Sandy was waiting to drop the “GO” sign. Poor Miss Mandy didn’t have a clue that on the way she had stepped in glue. With no way to clean her sticky shoe, Mandy was stuck and off Randy flew.

Thirty yards ahead, Randy looked down and started to frown, as he watched Mandy shed big tears like a sad, sulking clown. “I’d rather lose four pieces of candy and quit this race than to see that look on Mandy’s pretty face.”

So, Randy turned around and started to head back down when Mandy cut loose and got her feet up off the ground. Randy smiled as he looked at Mandy pass him by and said,

“Next time I’ll just bet my bright yellow bow tie.”
